

Alison Butler is the Senior Disability Policy Advisor for the State of Colorado's Disability Opportunity Office (CDOO). She joined the State following an extensive career as a civil rights attorney focusing on disability rights and leading the City & County of Denver's Disability Rights Division. Over the course of her career, Alison has fought for independence, equity, and justice for people with disabilities in accessing governmental services, employment, housing, public accommodations, and physical and mental health care services. She routinely provides training for local, state, and national audiences on the rights of people with disabilities and the corresponding responsibilities of state and local governments. She created and taught the inaugural Disability Rights Law course at University of Colorado Law School. Alison earned her B.A. from Florida State University and her J.D. from Columbia Law School.

alison.butler@state.co.us