

Curt Mower is certified as a Behavior Analyst who works with teachers, clinicians, and organizational leaders to create positive workplace cultures and effective treatment programs for adults, children, and their families.

Curt knows the importance of bringing a scientific, systematic approach to behavioral health program design; and understands the demands integrating various approaches and theoretical backgrounds of diverse groups of professionals.

Curt has worked in inpatient, outpatient, educational, and residential settings as a direct care staff, supervisor, manager, and director. He has been fortunate to have opportunities to present his work with data-driven decision making, quality improvement, and trauma-informed applied behavior analysis at conferences and workshops.

Curt earned a Master of Science degree in Psychology from Auburn University in 2004. He developed the Internship Program at Devereux Colorado that won a 2016 Community Partner of the Year Award from the University of Denver Counseling Psychology Department & College of Education.

Currently, Curt is the Director of Clinical Services at Support, Inc. where he has developed a trauma-informed approach to providing care and treatment to individuals with IDD that combines an understanding of mental health and behavioral treatments.

Curt is also frequently requested to provide clinical training and consultation to organizations in Colorado.
